

The CUES Study Online

Trialling the online delivery of a parent program for children who have difficulties managing uncertainty

We are conducting a research study to investigate if a group program delivered online helps families understand how to support and manage their child's challenges with uncertainty and anxiety in everyday situations.

Who can take part?

Parents/primary caregivers of young children aged (4-7 years) diagnosed on the autism spectrum with anxiety or worry about uncertainty living in Australia

Participation involves eight weekly two-hour online group sessions with therapists and other parents, and completing questionnaires and interviews about your child and family before and after the program.
